NEW JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL

REPORT OF SUPERINTENDENT

Office of Superintendent of Schools

Bloomfield, N. J.

June 29, 1940.

To the Board of Education,
Bloomfield, N. J.

I hereby present my twelfth annual report covering the public schools of Bloomfield, New Jersey, for the school year 1939-1940.

The public schools of Bloomfield belong to the people and are cherished by them. These schools today represent the largest collective enterprise of our citizens. The investment can be estimated in large sums, with an enrollment of 7,663, pupils and a teaching staff of three hundred.

To the scope of our public school work and its cost is entrusted, in such a large degree, the future well being of our state and nation, and by the returns which are evidenced on all sides same is fully justified. Our young people are learning, more than ever before, to act together as a group, to choose leaders wisely, to apportion activities and to accept responsibilities. The fact that membership in our Junior Red Cross is practically 100% in all of our schools is an indication of how our pupils react to demands as they arise. The development of these traits in our young people cannot be measured in money values, in reality the expense involved is a mere incident in such a program. When estimating the cost of education we too frequently forget to measure same in terms of future values and results. Often a small expenditure might save a young life from falling into the hands of the law. We hear far too little about the tremendous cost of maintaining our prisons and so-called reform institutions and expensive court procedures. Shall we continue to increase budgets for penal and mental institutions and at the same time decrease our efforts to avoid sending our youth to such institutions; or, shall we awaken to the fact that an apparent saving in our educational program is indeed false economy?

Bloomfield, fully recognizing all of the demands which are made upon its schools, has set itself to the task of meeting the issues in a satisfactory manner. The completion of the new Junior High School is announced with pleasure. On Monday, June 10th, 1940, by appropriate exercises, the building was officially dedicated and its use and enjoyment made possible to the boys and girls of junior high school age. Here we have a building ranking among the best in the country, complete in all its appointments and offerings, and none too good for the youth of our town who will daily wend their way to its open doors.

We are again called upon to announce the retirement of two of our teachers: Miss Elizabeth A. Terry, who has been identified with the Bloomfield public school system since 1907, and Mr. Fred L. Andrus, who came to teach in the high school in 1917. During the years these teachers served our community they held the respect and confidence of the pupils, teachers and parents.

The increased demands on the part of high schools pupils for courses offered in the various sciences has made it necessary to seek additional facilities in the nature of space and equipment.

During the school year all teachers and other employees presented evidence of having taken a medical examination as now required by recent legislation.

We again commend the splendid co-operation received from the Board of Education and its employees.

Respectfully submitted,
EDGAR S. STOVER, Superintendent.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH EDUCATION

"Never a dull moment," may truthfully be said about the average day of the school nurse. From the time of arrival at her office until she leaves, her day is colored with many interesting duties, frequently including grave responsibilities. Before nine o'clock the health room may contain several students who are suffering from a hastily eaten breakfast, a sudden cold, or some obscure ache. First Aid advice or bandaging is given, and only a few must wait for the coming of the school doctor.

After the first aid rush is over there are students to be found and prepared for the examination given annually by the doctor. The history and examination record is started. The nurse takes notes as the doctor proceeds. Whenever this examination reveals defects the parents are notified by letter or home visit. At this conference the nurse explains the purpose of the school physical examination and interprets the findings to the parents, wherein their child is normal and where medical attention is required. When parents ask what should be done, the nurse first refers them to their family doctor. If financial circumstances will not allow the student to be placed under a doctor's care, the nurse writes a letter of recommendation to some clinic of the parents' choice and thus the correction of the student's defect is begun. Sometimes parents ignore the first notice of the student's defect. Then a form letter is sent to the parents to have the defect corrected. If this notice is also ignored the nurse in more serious cases endeavors to contact the parents personally.

Before a student is allowed to practice for any school team the school nurse arranges for an examination of his heart and lungs. Doubtful cases are rechecked frequently. Another duty of the nurse is to provide immediate care for any student who becomes ill or injured during the course of the day. First aid is always given at once, and if the injury is serious, arrangements are made for further treatments. For example, John Smith fell in the basement, cutting his chin severely. The laceration needed sutures. School doctor was called to give first aid. He recommended the child be taken to the family physician. The nurse took John home and then called the family physician, who advised that John be taken to the hospital where he happened to be at the time. The school nurse accompanied the boy and mother to the hospital. With John in the competent hands of the doctor, the nurse returned to school to resume her duties and report the outcome to the principal.

SCHOOL SAVING FUND

The following report shows a substantial gain in the number of accounts and the amount of money saved during the school year over any previous year.

The splendid service rendered by The Bloomfield Savings Institution is fully appreciated by the students and no doubt accounts for the ever increasing interest shown by those availing themselves of this opportunity to save, many of them for a very definite purpose.
